

Being in my world

Values help people decide how to behave and how to treat others. For example, if someone values kindness, they might notice that another child is sitting alone and invite them to join in.

Vocabulary	Child-friendly definition
Value	Understanding that you and other people are important and deserve to be treated well.
Respect	Treating yourself and others with kindness and care.
Inclusion	Making sure everyone feels welcome and able to take part.
Belonging	Feeling accepted, safe and like you are an important part of a group.
Emotion	A feeling that we experience, such as happiness, sadness or anger.
Empathy	Trying to understand how another person might be feeling.
Rules	Instructions that help us know how to behave and keep people safe.
Rights	Things that everyone should be allowed to have or experience.
Responsibility	Something we are expected to do or take care of.

If a new child joins the class, showing empathy by noticing that they might feel nervous, showing kindness by talking to them, and communicating by asking questions and listening can help them feel welcome and that they belong.

Empathy, kindness and good communication help people feel that they matter, are listened to and are accepted for who they are.
